

Of course the anesthesiologists do not agree with being forced to accept a full discounted payment. They are only one segment of the medical profession that has never been a participating physician with any insurance network. They are also one of the highest paid segments of the medical profession. My husband and I have medicare, however, we pay $6000 a year for our secondary ins. and I feel every medical group should be forced to participate by having a contract with these medical networks.

Sharon Greer

